Transfer to a Wheelchair — Scenario Dialogue

Can-do: Guide a resident to stand and move safely into a wheelchair, cueing and encouraging them step by step.

1 · Dialogue & Why — 会話

Hana
(caregiver)やまだ くるま うつ
山田さん、車いすに移りましょうか。

Yamada-san, shall we move to the wheelchair?

Why: 移[うつ]る = 'to move (from one seat to another)' — the exact verb for a transfer (移乗[いじょう]). ～ ましょうか invites the resident to do it WITH you, respecting their autonomy. Announce the move before you start.

Yamada-san
(resident)はい、^{ねが}お願いします。

Yes, please.

Why: The resident agrees and invites your help with お願い[ねが]います. Only transfer when they've agreed — consent first, always.

Hana
(caregiver)では、ゆっくり^た立ちましょう。わたしの^{かた}肩につかまってください。

Then let's stand up slowly. Please hold onto my shoulder.

Why: 立[た]ちましょう = 'let's stand up'. つかまる = 'to hold on / grab'; 肩[かた]につかまってください =
'please hold onto my shoulder' — giving them something safe to grip. ゆっくり keeps it safe. Give ONE clear cue at a time.

Yamada-san
(resident)

よいしょ。

(with effort) Up we go.

Why: よいしょ is the sound Japanese people make with physical effort (like 'heave-ho' / 'here we go').
Hearing it tells you the resident is putting in effort — a natural cue that the movement is happening.

Hana
(caregiver)そうです、^{じょうず}上手ですよ。ゆっくりで^{だいじょうぶ}大丈夫です。

That's it — you're doing great. Slowly is just fine.

Why: そうです = 'that's right'; 上手[じょうず]ですよ = 'you're good at it / doing well' — encouragement keeps the resident confident and cooperative. ゆっくりで大丈夫[だいじょうぶ] removes pressure. Praise every small success.

Hana
(caregiver)

しょう。

Please turn your body this way. Hold the handrail and let's sit down slowly.

Why: 向[む]ける = 'to turn (something) toward'; 体[からだ]をこちらに向[む]けてください = 'turn your body this way' — こちら ('this way', polite for こっち) points them toward the chair. Then 座[すわ]りましょう = 'let's sit down'. Guide the turn, then the sit — one step at a time.

Yamada-san
(resident)

ありがとう。楽^{らく}になりました。

Thank you. That's more comfortable now.

Why: 楽[らく] = 'comfortable / at ease'; 楽[らく]になりました = 'it became comfortable' (楽[らく] + に + なる, 'to become ~'). A sign the transfer went well and the resident is settled.

Hana
(caregiver)

よかったです。むりをしないでくださいね。何^{なに}かあ^よったら呼んでくださいね。

Good. Please don't overdo it. Call me if you need anything.

Why: よかったです = 'I'm glad (that's good)'. むりをする = 'to overdo / push too hard'; むりをしないでください = 'please don't overexert yourself' — a caring close that protects the resident from straining. ~しないでください again for a gentle warning. 呼[よ]んでくださいね (Ep 4) leaves the door open: a resident who knows they can call you will not try a risky move alone.
