家族(かぞく)への 報告(ほうこく)

Talking with Family — Updating a Visitor Politely — Scenario Dialogue

Can-do: Greet a visiting family member, give a clear factual update on the resident, share a concern plainly, and reassure them — using full keigo.

1 · Dialogue & Why — 会話

Hana (caregiver)

こんにちは。本日(ほんじつ)は お越(こ)しくださり、ありがとうございます。

Hello. Thank you very much for coming in today.

Why: A warm, respectful greeting to a visitor. 本日(ほんじつ) is the formal word for 'today' (more polite than 今日(きょう)). お越(こ)しくださり uses 尊敬語(そんけいご) — お越(こ)し is the honorific of 来(き)る ('to come'), and 〜くださり thanks them for doing it. First impressions build the family's trust.

Hana (caregiver)

介護(かいご)スタッフの ハナと 申(もう)します。いつも お世話(せわ)に なっております。

I'm Hana, one of the care staff. Thank you for your continued support.

Why: Always identify yourself — role + name — so the family feels secure. 申(もう)します is the humble form of 言(い)う ('to be called'). お世話(せわ)になっております (humble おる) is the set phrase for 'thank you for everything / your ongoing support' — you'll use it constantly with families.

Daughter (visitor)

いつも 母(はは)が お世話(せわ)に なって います。母(はは)は 元気(げんき)でしょうか。

Thank you for always taking care of my mother. Is she doing well?

Why: Notice the daughter calls her own mother 母(はは) (haha) — the humble word you use for YOUR OWN family to others. (You, the staff, would call the resident お母様(かあさま) — honorific, because she's the listener's family.) This in/out-group switch is core Japanese keigo.

Hana (caregiver)

はい。お母様(かあさま)は お変(か)わりなく お過(す)ごしです。

Yes. Your mother is doing well, with no changes.

Why: To the family, you refer to the resident with honorifics: お母様(かあさま) ('your mother', respectful) and お過(す)ごしです (尊敬語(そんけいご) of 過(す)ごす, 'to spend one's time'). お変(か)わりなく = 'without any change / doing as well as ever' — a reassuring, standard phrase.

Hana (caregiver)

昨日(きのう)は レクに 参加(さんか)なさって、笑顔(えがお)も 見(み)られましたよ。

Yesterday she joined the recreation and we even saw her smiling.

Why: Give CONCRETE, factual, positive detail — families treasure it. 参加(さんか)なさって uses なさる (尊敬語(そんけいご) of する) for the resident's action. 笑顔(えがお)も見(み)られました = 'we could even see her smile'. Specific moments ('joined recreation, smiled') reassure far more than a vague 'she's fine'.

Hana (caregiver)

ただ、少（すこ）し 食欲（しょくよく）が 落（お）ちて いらっしゃいます。

That said, her appetite has dropped a little.

> Why: Share concerns plainly and early — never hide them. ただ = 'however / that said', softly turning to the concern. 落（お）ちていらっしゃいます uses いらっしゃる (尊敬語（そんけいご）) for the resident. Say it in plain, non-alarming words (食欲（しょくよく）が落（お）ちる = 'appetite drops') — you report, you don't diagnose.

Daughter (visitor)

そうですか…。少（すこ）し 心配（しんぱい）ですね。

I see... that's a little worrying.

> Why: 心配（しんぱい） = 'worry / concern'. When a family member voices worry, acknowledge it and offer reassurance and a plan (next line) rather than brushing it off. Trust is built by taking their concern seriously.

Hana (caregiver)

看護師（かんごし）とも 相談（そうだん）しております。何（なに）か ありましたら、すぐに ご連絡（れんらく）いたします。

We're consulting with the nurse as well. If anything comes up, we'll contact you right away.

> Why: Reassure with a concrete plan. 相談（そうだん）しております (humble おる) = 'we are consulting'; ご連絡（れんらく）いたします uses いたす (humble する) = 'we will contact you'. Promising proactive contact ('we'll never hide anything') is what earns a family's lasting trust.
