Night Rounds — Quiet Check-ins and a Call for Help — Scenario Dialogue

Can-do: Do a quiet night round, respond softly when a resident is awake, guide them safely to the toilet, and settle them back to sleep.

1 · Dialogue & Why — 会話

Hana (caregiver)

（小声で）田中さん、失礼します。大丈夫ですか。

(quietly) Tanaka-san, excuse me. Are you all right?

Why: On night rounds you announce yourself 小声で ('in a low voice') so you don't startle the resident or wake others. 失礼します = 'excuse me / pardon the intrusion' — always say it before entering a room, day or night. Move quietly, keep the light dim.

Hana (caregiver)

お休みの ところ、すみません。どうされましたか。

Sorry to disturb your rest. What's the matter?

Why: お休みのところ = 'while you're resting' (お休み is honorific for sleep/rest), a courteous way to apologise for interrupting. どうされましたか uses される (尊敬語 of する) = 'what's the matter?'. Gentle, respectful — even at 3 a.m.

Tanaka-san (resident)

眠れなくて…。トイレに 行きたいの。

I can't sleep... I want to go to the toilet.

Why: 眠れない = 'can't sleep' (potential negative of 眠る). At night, needing the toilet is the most common reason residents are awake — identify the real need quickly and calmly. 〜たい = 'want to 〜' (行きたい = want to go).

Hana (caregiver)

お手洗いですね。ご案内しますね。

The toilet, of course. I'll take you there.

Why: ご案内します (humble 案内する) = 'I'll guide/take you'. Night is when falls happen most — dark, drowsy, unsteady — so you escort the resident rather than let them go alone. Repeating the need back ('お手洗いですね') confirms you understood.

Hana (caregiver)

足元に 気をつけてくださいね。私が そばに ついています。

Please watch your step. I'm right beside you.

Why: 足元に気をつけて = 'watch your step / mind your feet' — essential at night. 私がついています ('I'm with you') reassures. Keep a hand ready to support; guide toward the handrail. Calm, close supervision (見守り) prevents the night falls that cause serious injury.

Tanaka-san (resident)

ありがとう。すっきりした。

Thank you. That's better.

Why: すっきりした = 'I feel relieved / better' (past of すっきりする). Once the need is met, gently settle the resident back to bed and reassure them to sleep — don't rush off. A calm handover back to sleep is part of the care.

Hana (caregiver)

ゆっくり お休(やす)みくださいね。何(なに)か あったら、この ボタンを 押(お)して 呼(よ)んでくださいね。

Please sleep well. If anything happens, press this button and call me.

Why: お休(やす)みください uses 尊敬語(そんけいご) (お休(やす)みになる → お休(やす)みください) to gently wish them good rest. Then you point out the nurse call: 何(なに)かあったら ('if anything happens') 押(お)してください ('please press'). Leaving the call within reach means they can summon help instead of trying to get up alone.

Hana (caregiver)

また 見(み)に 来(き)ますね。おやすみなさい。

I'll come to check on you again. Good night.

Why: 見(み)に来(き)ます = 'I'll come to see/check' (〜に 来(く)る = come in order to 〜) — telling them you'll be back is reassuring. おやすみなさい = 'good night', the full polite form. Then you record the round: time, that she woke, toileted, and settled — brief and factual.
